Personal Profile

Originally from Indonesia, I am a motivated and highly adaptable fresh graduate from the IBBA program at National Tsing Hua University (NTHU), Taiwan. Living and studying abroad has shaped me into someone who is comfortable stepping into new environments, adjusting quickly to different cultures, work styles, and expectations. This international experience has strengthened my independence, flexibility, and ability to thrive in unfamiliar situations.

I am fluent in Indonesian and English, with intermediate proficiency in Chinese, enabling me to communicate effectively in multicultural and cross-functional settings. My language skills allow me to collaborate smoothly with diverse teams, understand different perspectives, and support both local and international operations.

Throughout my academic and professional journey, I have intentionally taken on roles involving different tasks and divisions. I believe that broad exposure leads to stronger understanding and better problem-solving skills. Driven by curiosity and a strong desire to learn, I actively seek new knowledge and hands-on experiences to continuously develop a wide range of skills.

I enjoy challenges that push me beyond my comfort zone and view every new responsibility as an opportunity for growth. With a proactive mindset, adaptability, and strong willingness to learn, I am eager to contribute value to an organization while continuing to expand my professional capabilities.
